Wichita, Kansas
Volume Ten 1969*

Today is tomorrow's memory. Each moment is a stepping stone to future dreams and ambitions and cannot be wasted. Small, seemingly unimportant incidents may form the basis for a change in attitude that could direct a life onto a completely different course. A member of the Colonel debate team, an officer in South's Student Government, or the recipient of a scholarship gain as great an amount of pride, satisfaction, and knowledge as the amount of time, energy, and spirit invested. For a decade South High students have been noted for their efforts toward self-improvement as well as for the betterment of the school.

However, time erases many details of the past. Dr. Pyles, the members of the Colonel's football squad, or the first-chair tuba player might be familiar figures now, but may fade or be forgotten in the coming years. Joy does not have to be temporary; it can be shared in reminiscence. Sorrow can teach — it need not be forgotten. Every passing minute holds something new, something beautiful, or something to be cherished. Life is not merely existence now. Life is today utilizing yesterday toward a better tomorrow.

AS CONSTRUCTION of the building neared completion, builders added touches of Southern pride and beauty in the design of the courtyard.

On Sept. 4, 1958, Wichita High School South opened with an enrollment of 1,500 students. The red brick building was designed by Fosblom and Parks and constructed by the Clarence Vollmer Construction Company at a cost of approximately $3,900,000. Located on a 40-acre tract at Osage and 34th Street, South is noted for its attractively well-equipped classrooms and facilities.

Because the original building capacity was only 2,200, 15 portable classrooms have been added over a period of three years to accommodate an increased enrollment. Today, a record 2,658 Colonels make South the largest high school in the state.

South's administrative staff numbered four in 1958, with two counselors and 63 faculty members. Personnel this year included three administrators, four counselors, and 98 members of the faculty.

MR. PATRICK H. THIESSEN — Board of Education President

Dr. Pyles encourages Southern spirit, pride

Dr. Ralph Pyles, principal, worked closely with the Wichita Board of Education, under the direction of new superintendent of schools, Dr. Alvin Morris, to plan effective and modern programs and curriculum ideas for South High. One such new program instigated by Dr. Pyles was a developmental reading course which would utilize special equipment and supplies, and would be taught by a specially trained instructor. Dr. Pyles placed particular emphasis on school spirit and pride. He expressed this sentiment and others, such as good citizenship, faith in young people, and devotion to a cause, in frequent speeches to various organized groups. Dr. Pyles' favorite outside activities included his participation in scouting and in church affiliated organizations.

MR. THEODORE SHACKELFORD and Mr. Harold Stiles surveyed the over-crowded parking lot with concern as students hurried to make the 8:00 class.

Theodore Shackelford joins administrative staff

Assistant principals Harold W. Stiles and Theodore Shackelford, Jr. found their duties complicated by this year's enlarged student body. According to Mr. Stiles the most notable change was in the number of busses necessary. Instead of the four busses utilized last year ten were needed to accommodate students. Mr. Shackelford was new to South this year, coming from Horace Mann Junior High where he served as administrator and science teacher. Mr. Shackelford graduated from Langston University, a teachers college in Oklahoma and earned his master's degree at Wichita State University. He was honored in 1967 by being one of five men in the nation chosen to go to Jamaica in order to set up a junior high school science curriculum. Both administrators found their work genuinely rewarding.

Counselors place value on personal relationships

With an increased enrollment, the burdens of the guidance staff were greatly magnified this year. Each counselor found it more difficult than ever before to give every student the individual attention needed. However, none was discouraged from striving for this goal as they devoted more time, energy, and research to this cause. Seeing counseling as an "interesting and challenging profession" was Mr. Paul Foster, new sophomore counselor, formerly from Mayberry Junior High. In addition to offering hours of personal guidance, counselors administered tests and volunteered information on scholarships and job opportunities.

SOPHOMORE COUNSELOR Mr. Paul Foster, made suggestions and presented facts on choosing the right college to Daria Adrich.

MR. GERALD MORRISON, guidance coordinator, advised college hopeful Joyce Cantrell on requirements for the American College test.

Office staff is 'indispensable' to faculty, students

One of the most indispensable of South's departments is the office staff. Checking attendance, distributing schedules and grade cards, and regular secretarial duties were only a few of the responsibilities of this staff. Mr. Vervle Houser's job as security officer became exceedingly difficult this year, as the parking lot was filled to capacity and many students had to park their cars on side streets. New to the staff were Miss Lynn Bowin, a graduate from West's office practice program, working as a clerk; and Miss Karen Maxwell, an office practice student from North, working the switchboard. This staff worked together efficiently to keep South's business affairs in good order.

New electric scooter aids custodial staff

With the greatly increased enrollment of this year, school maintenance posed an unusually difficult task. South's custodial staff carried out these duties with an abundance of efficiency and responsibility. However, a new electric "scooter" made Mr. Kenneth Kisner's job as head custodian less difficult. Mrs. Wilma Knoblock, formerly of Curtis Junior High, became cafeteria manager this year. Last year's "fast line" was replaced by a regular line in which malts could still be purchased. A new deep freeze was one of the pieces of the modern equipment utilized by South's experienced cafeteria staff and aiding in the production of balanced appetizing meals.

Language Arts teachers offer composition guides

The language arts department this year was headed by the new coordinator, Mrs. Lois McPherron. Because effective self-expression and a basic knowledge of the English language are essential, teachers of this department were faced with an important and difficult task. New techniques were used to advantage, such as Mr. Michael Dougherty's frequent employment of audio-visual aids toward better understanding. Mr. Wayne Dixon experimented successfully with students teaching class. Enlarged English composition and college reading courses reflected students' expanding interest in college. Teachers new to the department this year were Mrs. Betty Kukral, Mr. Dougherty, and Mr. Dixon.

AIDING A student of the newly initiated Reading Improvement course was Mrs. Alice Anderson, English instructor.

RHONDA WILSON looked on in disbelief as Drama I students were aged several years through the use of make-up.

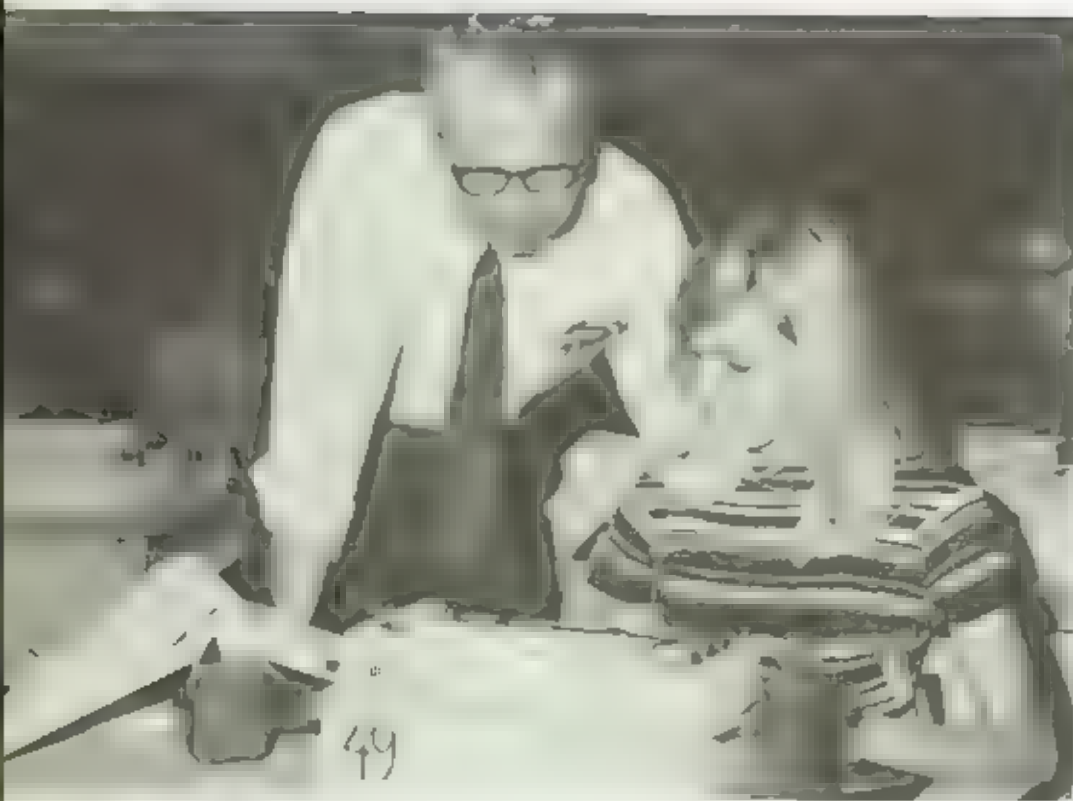

MR. ALBRIGHT, to left, is shown to mark a Mary Whitlock dressed in a traditional German costume and other German students looked on.

WALTRAUD (VAL) Christian's German background did not affect her fluency of French speaking in third year French class.

Students intently explore various foreign cultures

In the foreign language department emphasis this year was placed on speaking and acquisition of knowledge of foreign cultures. Mrs. Linda Lawrence, French instructor and Miss Hope Huddleston, teaching Spanish, were new instructors in the department. Another outstanding newcomer was Waltraud (Val) Christian, a German exchange student, who brought with her first hand knowledge of the German way of life. Val came from Bielefeld, Germany, on the International Christian Youth Exchange Program and found most of the students and teachers to be "very nice." Colonels planning to go to Europe on South's own foreign exchange program hope to convey as fine an impression of Americans as Val presented of her countrymen. The program this year inspired greater participation and enthusiasm than was displayed in any previous year.

MR. PRIEB checked Joy Sisler's work for speed and accuracy as she typed assignments dictated to her on tape.

PAT FREEMAN and Carol Medford discussed the problems encountered with duplicating machines in copy and design class.

Business department utilizes new equipment

South's business department, noted as one of the few departments in the state using a sequential pattern of course development, benefited greatly from newly-acquired equipment this year. Items purchased included rotary calculators and ten-key printing calculators, which put the calculations and results on tape. In addition, design and duplication classes had access to the new $1,700 camera and accompanying darkroom equipment. The department welcomed expanded classroom space as two portables were used on a full-time basis, and, for the first time, all shorthand classes were taught in rooms equipped with typewriters. New teachers, Mrs. Pat Feltner and Mr. Don Schmidt, were welcomed by the highly-regarded business instructors, three of whom (Mr. Pote, Mr. Prieb, and Mr. Wilson) have taught at South since 1959.

MAKING USE of one of the business department's new rotary calculators was Eddie Graves, Office Machines calculating student.

MR. ISAACS' U.S. History students followed news of the November election closely through current news publications and periodicals.

Social Science students explore current events

Change was evident in the social science classes this year. A new current events course was added to the curriculum, emphasizing the study of news through the use of newspapers, and Negro history was, for the first time, incorporated into American history courses. Consultant on this project was Mr. James Anderson, one of government class' "team teachers." Students studied the finer points of fellowship and culture in the community in humanities classes, and in American history events of the past were linked significantly with today's issues. Psychology and sociology classes, in the same way, dealt with man's relationships in society, but stressed more clearly man's importance as an individual. New to the department was Mr. Odus Isaacs, American History instructor.

CURRENT EVENTS student Sandi Duckworth used modern periodicals and newspapers as sources for a class project.

MIKE MORRISON and Jacque Shelton found a quick and efficient way to solve problems in trigonometry by using the business department's large economy size slide rule

MR. MARTIN'S geometry class listened as Treasa Phillips explained a proof problem

Students learn reasoning by solving math problems

Six different courses were offered in the mathematics department at the beginning of the school year. In the course of his study, the mathematics student learned numerical abilities and basic reasoning skills. Those who wished to enter mathematical fields of occupation were aided and encouraged by competent and skilled instructors. Mrs. Wilma Mahannah, new to the department, explained that teachers were doubling their efforts to put into effect changes made in mathematics eight years ago. Other instructors new to South, Mrs. Jean Troutman and Mr. David Hugg, agreed that the "new math" concept played an essential role in the comprehension of modern mathematical principles.

Modern scientific texts aid in student experimentation

Many of South's science teachers used new textbooks to stress the inter-relationships between biotic and abiotic organisms found in the earth's biosphere. The outmoded "Basic Science" classes were replaced by Beginning Biology classes in order to deal more effectively with current scientific problems and events. These classes employed the Brown version of text book and materials. Botany students benefited greatly from the recently purchased "plant mobiles", or movable carts with built-in artificial lights to lengthen the period of plant growth. Mr. Herbert Bahm joined the science department this year, coming to South from Truesdell Junior High. His techniques, well known by his former junior high students, included the sketching of specimens in order to fully grasp the detail of the specimen's anatomy.

LAB ASSISTANT Larry Mitchell assisted in the feeding of the gerbils used for experimental purposes by Mr. Sanderson's biology students.

ROBBY McCOMBS kept careful watch on the specimen Lewis Wong was about to net in the aquarium in Mr. Eder's Biology class.

JOHN [unclear] sure that you [unclear] Sandy Richman to help you [unclear] in your [unclear] in Mr. Ander's physiology class.

MRS. PAT UNDERWOOD'S young child displayed extreme concern at being used for a 'bathe a baby' demonstration in child development class

MRS. LINDA WHITE made suggestions to tailoring student Lynda Adridge in order to assure a well made and attractive garment

New curriculum guides inspire homemaking plans

The home economics department was updated this year by new curriculum guides composed by teachers in this department and throughout the city. As a result of this change, Clothing III class replaced a garment project with the utilization of material samples, and added a unit relating the importance of clothing to society. In addition, a modern food blender was purchased for the foods room, and the child development class acquired several new color transparencies on sex education. Mrs. Barbara Klish, teaching Foods I and Clothing I, was new to the department this year. All home economics teachers endeavored to instill in students qualities that would aid them in becoming better parents and citizens.

PATTY WILMETH poured tasty caramel sauce over popcorn to make a special treat for the fall season

Artistic, musical talents encouraged by faculty

Enthusiasm was the key word in the fine arts department this year as the music and art classes strived toward creative expression. Mr. Roller's band participated in its first "marching band contest" this year and the orchestra visited many junior high schools. The vocal music department outdid its previous efforts in money-making projects, which provided compensation for the cost of attiring the groups. Ensembles varied from tradition as the Southern Belles was composed entirely of junior girls for the first time, and second hour choir sang independently from the other groups. Art students showed their Southern spirit by exhibiting original works and entering projects in the Scholastic Art Awards contest. Students in Mr. Sanderson's sculpture class displayed impressive ability in unusual forms of architectural sculpture.

DEAN SUMMERS strived for perfection of tone, rhythm and melody as he practiced a song with the brass quartet.

THE ASPECTS of color, texture, shape, and artistic creativity shown in paintings, drawings, and sculptures proved extremely interesting to Colonel art student Don Smith.

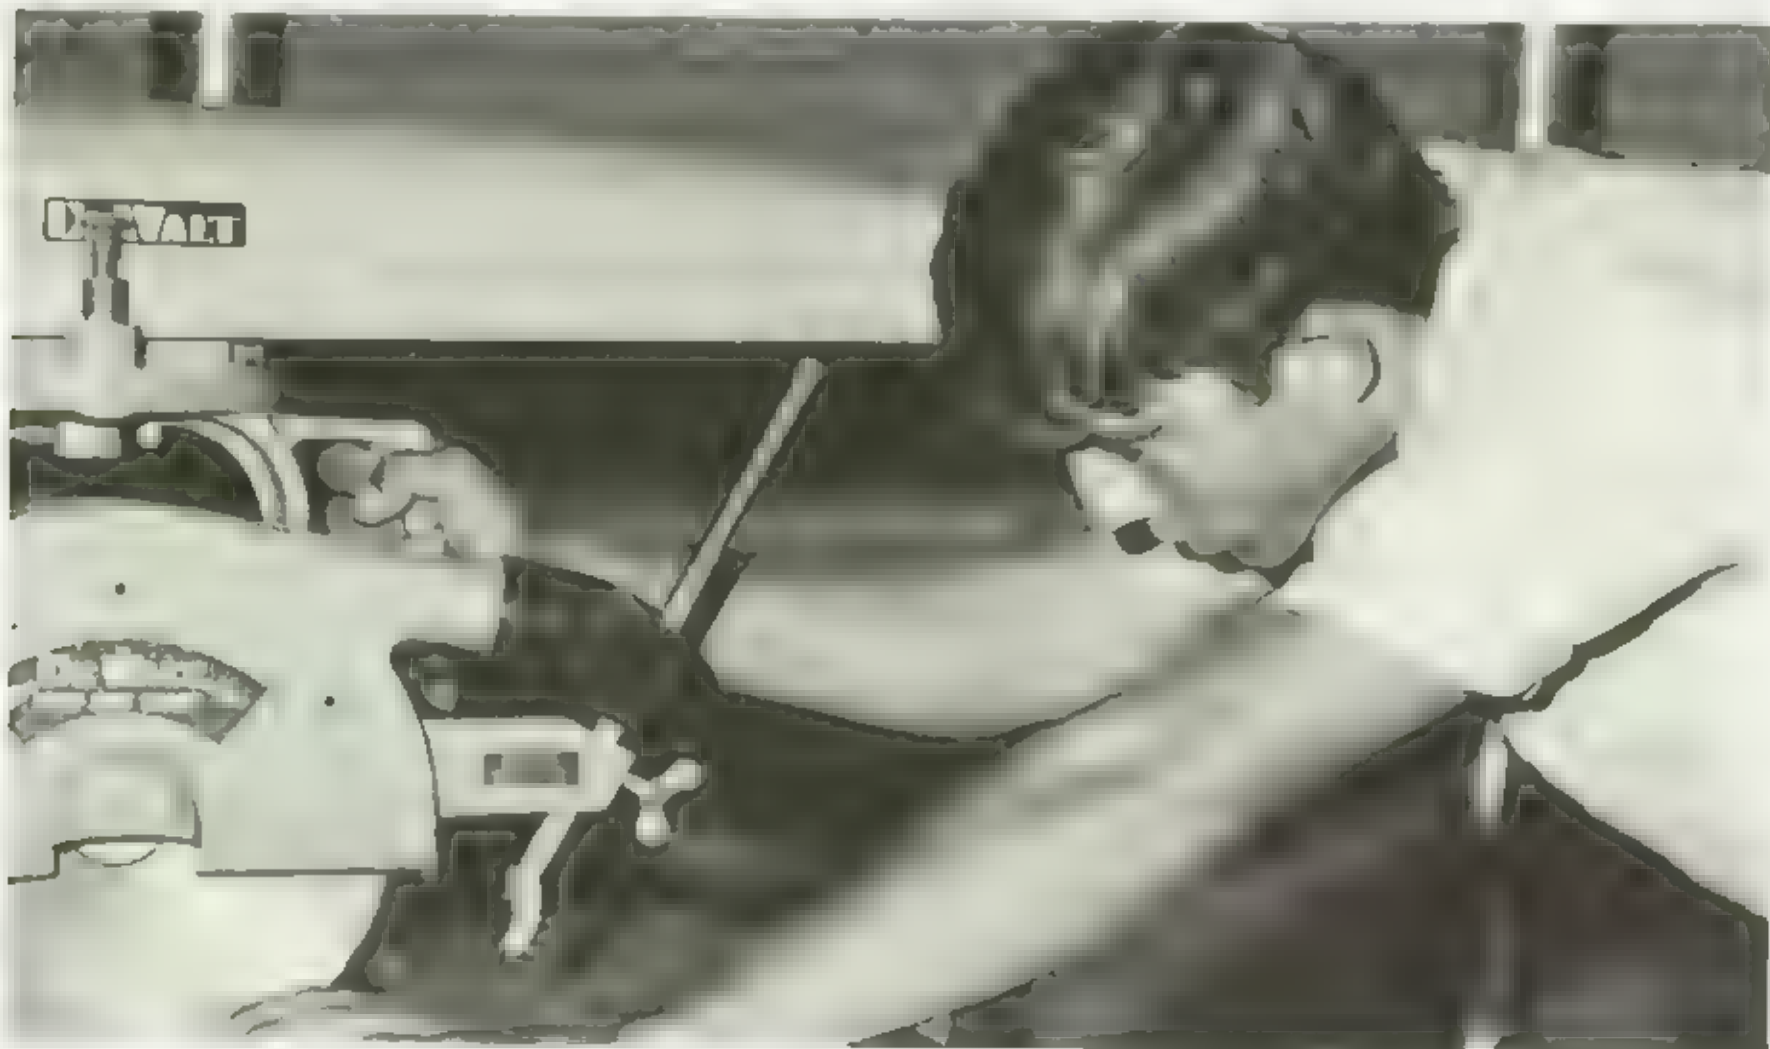

New techniques efficient in industrial arts courses

Industrial arts students found the department notably efficient in the conveying of concepts and techniques in the field of occupational skills this year. Boys were offered a semester course in small engine repair for the first time, and Mechanical Drawing III classes were divided into architectural and machine drawing in order to further develop capabilities in each area. In a program often overlooked in the industrial arts department, driver's education, an important change also ensued, a "driver trainer" was permanently installed in an attempt to relate theories taught in class more closely to the practice of driving. New to the department this year was Mr. David Almes, teaching driving and Drawing II and III. In this, the "Machine Age" the effectiveness of this department was doubly important.

CRAIG TODD and Kevin Kramer listened intently as Mr. Robert Rich, auto mechanics instructor, pointed out one of the parts of a

MIKE BOJRK, junior, found that a modern power saw came in handy in woodworking class when an important and very complicated wood working project was due.

Physical Education teachers stress good health

Under the guidance of experienced physical education instructors, students strived toward goals of good health and wholesome living. Teachers encouraged participation in body development, recreational activities and aided those interested in professional sports as well as providing assistance to the physically handicapped. Plans included in the boys' program were for a five-hole golf course and the addition of outdoor badminton courts. The extra courts would enable those studying tennis to participate more frequently alternating from tennis to badminton. In girls' physical education, competition was the key-word. After school sports were accentuated and girls on varsity competitive teams wore attractively colorful South High uniforms

Bonfire adds excitement to Homecoming festivities

Queen Sally Crider and King Ron Friedman truly reflected Southern "pride" as they were crowned under the arch of the attractive, blue and white float at the Friday, Oct. 11 homecoming game. South's own "Colonel" (Don Simpson) astride a lively brown stallion highlighted an overwhelmingly large car caravan and added to the success of the festivities. The week preceding the night of "Pride Over Dixie" was proclaimed

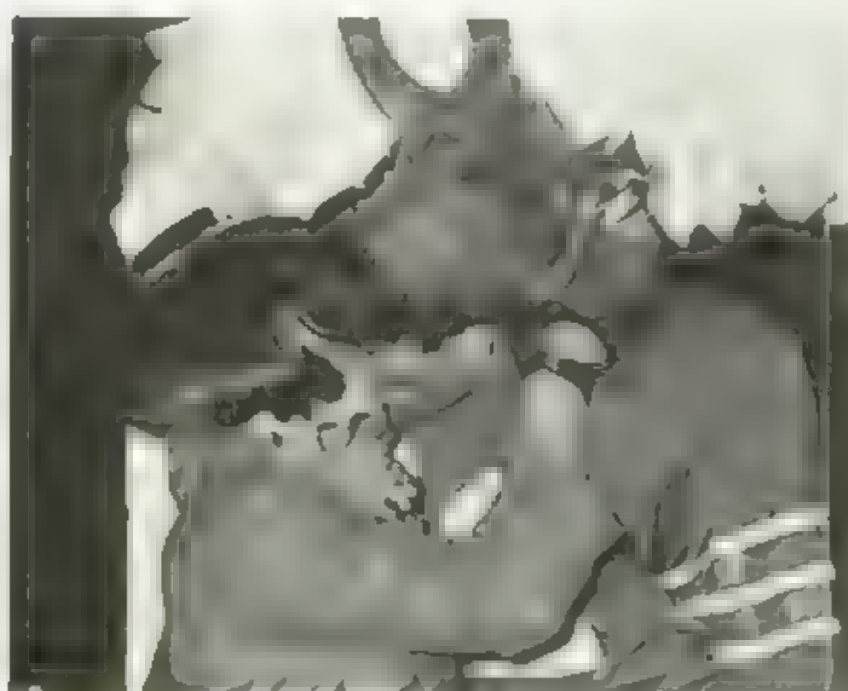

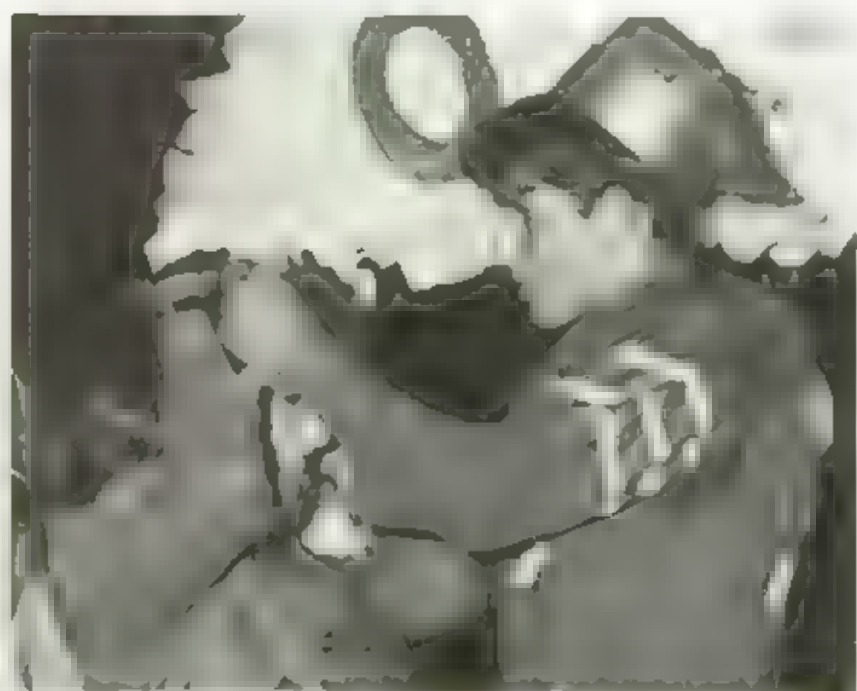

"Sport Week" and included "Boot Day," "Beat the Buffs Day," and a large bonfire in the parking lot in which an effigy of a Southeast football player was burned. Though the Colonel team was defeated by one touchdown, spirits were not dampened for the homecoming dance on Saturday night. The Oracles, featuring singer Greg Stevens, provided music for the event.

Accepting positions of senior royalty were Gabrielle Gary Huse, Cindy Nietfeld, and Larry Delozier. Junior and senior girls Roxanne Juarez, Robbie Gore, Jill Ott, Richard Hammer, Pam Bridges, and Al Lewis also delighted in the evening's activities.

With emphasis of South's 1968-69 Pep Club placed on good attendance at minor sports events as well as major events, busy Colonels found few moments of spare time. The titles of Mr. and Miss Pep were given to the two seniors who devoted the greatest amount of their time to school activities. In addition, candidates were judged on their display of spirit, cooperation and general enthusiasm. Curt Young and Rita Bevins chosen as this year's Mr. and Miss Pep, were selected for these qualities as well as those of responsibility and leadership. Senior attendants were Brad Pearce and Dana Letsinger. Junior attendants, Joel Cox and Phyllis Lemmon; and sophomore attendants, Ray Keith and Gail Burkette.

'Rainbow's End' proves enjoyable for seniors

Many Colonels found entertainment and enjoyment at this year's Senior Banquet entitled Rainbow's End. Following this theme, Mr. Charles Sanderson's art classes provided corresponding decorations and Larry DeLozier and Joyce Baker sang "Look to the Rainbow" accompanied by pianist Donna Smith. The banquet held on February 5 at the Civic Playhouse, was attended by South High seniors only, with the exception of the junior class officers who acted as ushers. The guest speaker, Mr. Lynn Whiteside, Management Development Supervisor at Boeing, spoke on the future plans of young people. The menu, including a ten ounce club steak, was termed exceedingly tasty by all present.

The activities at South took on a comic strip quality as the roles of the sexes were somewhat reversed during this year's Sadie Hawkins week. Sponsored by the Y-Teens, the "Dogpatch" holiday was observed with pleasure by boys who enjoyed having their books carried and doors opened for them for a change. Highlighting the week's festivities was the girl-ask-boy dance held after the game Friday night. The Mad Hatters provided the music for the dance, and Marryin Sam aided in the girls' attempts to keep their men Crowned. Sadie Hawkins king and queen were Clarence Harlan and Debbie Boring. Booths, music, activities featured at Mardi Gras

Many Colonels found a fun-filled evening at this year's Mardi Gras. Booths, concessions, and the dance that followed were included in the evening's festivities. Flowers sold and a body paint shop sponsored by the band reflected modern tastes while Chez Nous, a French restaurant, the Sweet Shop, and the marriage booth added a touch of the old fashioned. New activities this year were singing telegrams sponsored by the senior class and the Pep Club sponsored Trik-O-Trak. Participating students also enjoyed music by the Oracles, the ring toss, the basketball throw, and the dunking machine. The dance immediately following featured the Yorkshires and was highlighted by rotating scream lights.

'American Way' follows experiences of family

Covering forty-three years and five style eras, "The American Way" provided an interesting challenge for costume and make-up crews. The play followed the story of the emigration of Martin and Irma Gunther (J. B. Kaufman and Dona Dehne) and their family to America and portrayed the experiences they encountered in the town of Mapleton, Ohio. In a cast of seventy-five people, such characters as Mapleton's mayor, school children as young as four-year-olds, and even a small brass band were included. The depression and the beginning of the Nazi movement in America were among the events that affected the lives of the Gunther family. The hardships endured by the Gunthers, as well as the joys, were shared by an enthusiastic audience.

Cast of English comedy satirizes customs of elite

Confused identity and a mix-up in telephone conversations created the comedy theme in "The Reluctant Debutante." Set in London, the play deals with Sheila Broadbent (Virginia Creamer) and her husband, Jimmy's (Dave Bray) desire to bring their daughter, Jane (Kathy Hobson) out in society. The cast of eight was composed of members of the advanced drama class, and due to the short period of four weeks preparation time, rehearsals were often held during class. The fast-paced performances satirized gossip and hypocrisies of the "elite" in a comical way and commented on the dangers of jumping to conclusions.

Colorful costumes, sets create mood in 'Ondine'

'Ondine,' the third play presented by South's drama department this year, concerned the water sprite Ondine (Kathy Hobson) and her desire to be mortal. Problems arise when the knight, Hans, (Mike Pottorf) is sent by his betrothed, Princess Bertha, (Lynette Mason) into the forest on a mission. He there happens upon the hut of Ondine and her parents where he is immediately smitten with love for the water sprite. However, after returning to court with Hans, Ondine finds that their love was not meant to be and in the tragic ending returns to her friends of the sea. Colorful costumes and elaborate sets added an imaginative touch to the delightful fantasy.

ONDINE PLEADED with Hans to love her, but he insisted the time was late at the play's end.

Broadway hit chosen for South's musical production

The play chosen for the drama department's musical this year was the Broadway hit "Half A Sixpence." The story line dealt with the rags to riches tale of Arthur Kipps (Larry DeLozier) and the problems he encountered. Brought to life in an English setting, delightful music and choreography added an extra air of excitement to the entire production. The play's end could only be a happy one as Kipps was forced to choose between his rich girl friend (Lynette Mason) and his poor girl friend (Kathy Hobson). At the climax of the play Kipps found happiness by discounting his riches in search for more valuable aspects of life. South's orchestra provided the musical accompaniment

Thespians plan banquet; publicize four productions

South High's Thespians and Plantation Players had an added opportunity to learn the arts of acting and producing plays this year. Instead of the usual three play productions, casts and crews were exposed to four contrasting performances, including a patriotic play, an English comedy, a fantasy, and ending with a musical in the spring. Drama students were enlightened as to the business phase of staging plays also as they joined in publicity and money-making drives. A summer garage sale, a bake sale held in the fall, and a Christmas candy sale helped increase the profits made from the actual productions. Members enjoyed make-up demonstrations during the Friday morning meetings and began planning for the annual Thespian banquet several months previous to the popular event.

Sabre staff records anniversary in print, pictures

Teresa Hill

Choosing South's tenth anniversary as its theme, the Sabre staff strove to produce a book worthy of an All American rating. The size of the Sabre was increased by sixteen pages, and natural color was added for special pictures. Employing five juniors and six seniors, the staff selected a cover that featured the school colors in a design utilizing a silhouette of the school building. In their efforts to produce a faithful record of the 1968-69 school year at South, members of the Sabre staff were seen gathering material and taking photographs during school and at activities. Organizing this material into a cohesive yearbook often required of the staff extra hours of work during vacations and after school. The enthusiasm with which the Sabre was received, however, compensated for the extra effort that was required to produce it.

Staff publishes special anniversary Southerner

Frequently assisted by Journalism I students, the Southerner staff strived for an interesting and informative paper. Articles published bi-weekly in the Southerner included news of student achievements, dances and sporting events with accompanying photographs. Members of the staff worked toward a fourth All American award to add to those won consecutively in the three previous years. A special tenth anniversary edition was published this year, placing emphasis on events of the past ten years, alumni, and changes in faculty and administration. A Christmas literary edition containing contributed poems and short stories won approval from the entire student body. In addition, staff members collected advertisements to be printed to aid in publishing expenses and won acclaim for the well-written editorials in each issue.

Savant staff dedicates book, interviews hippie

South High's literary club, the Savant staff, found enthusiasm among sponsors a help this year. English instructors Mr. Mike Dougherty, Mrs. Lillian Baldwin, Mrs. Marsha Dumler, and Mrs. Jane Connett aided club members in the discussion and review of all types of literary material. Poetry, movies, plays and short stories were among many topics analyzed, with emphasis placed on controversial issues. At one meeting one of Wichita's own "hippies" discussed his views on pertinent subjects with the sponsors and staff. Members encouraged the surrendering of superior works by dedicating a book to the class with the most material submitted.

Student Government is changed by constitution

Meeting during school hours, the South High Student Government operated under a new constitution that provided a more efficient organization by changing the method of representation. The Student Government helped to promote school spirit by providing busses to out of town games. It also sponsored Spirit Week activities that were highlighted by an evening bonfire and pep rally. In an effort to improve student-teacher Appreciation Week was held. The Student Government sponsored "speak-out" nights and a "vote" demonstration to provide opportunities for student involvement and expression of opinion. French Club members hold breakfast, banquet

French Club endeavored to supplement classroom study of the French language by familiarizing its members with French customs. To accomplish this the club held a variety of activities throughout the year beginning with a picnic in the fall. At regular meetings, members participated in such activities as tasting French cheese and celebrating Saint Catherine's Day. The annual Christmas party featured French carols, French customs, and French food. The club held a breakfast to highlight the end of the year activities. In order to send students to France to study during the summer, candy was sold by the French Club.

German Club advances understanding of culture

MEMBER BILL DEEDS looked on with amusement as Kaylynn Lambke was initiated into the German Club.

The South High School German Club set out to reach three objectives that were to benefit its members. Supplementing the courses taught in the German language, the club provided background in the German culture and its customs and sought to remove prejudices with regard to another way of life. Beyond this, however, German Club gave students an opportunity to live and experience the German language in their natural environment by providing interesting and educational activities. Some of these activities included the celebration of German holidays. "Octoberfest," a party featuring various types of German food, and "Fashing," the German version of the Mardi Gras, or masquerade, were two of these typically German holidays that the club celebrated.

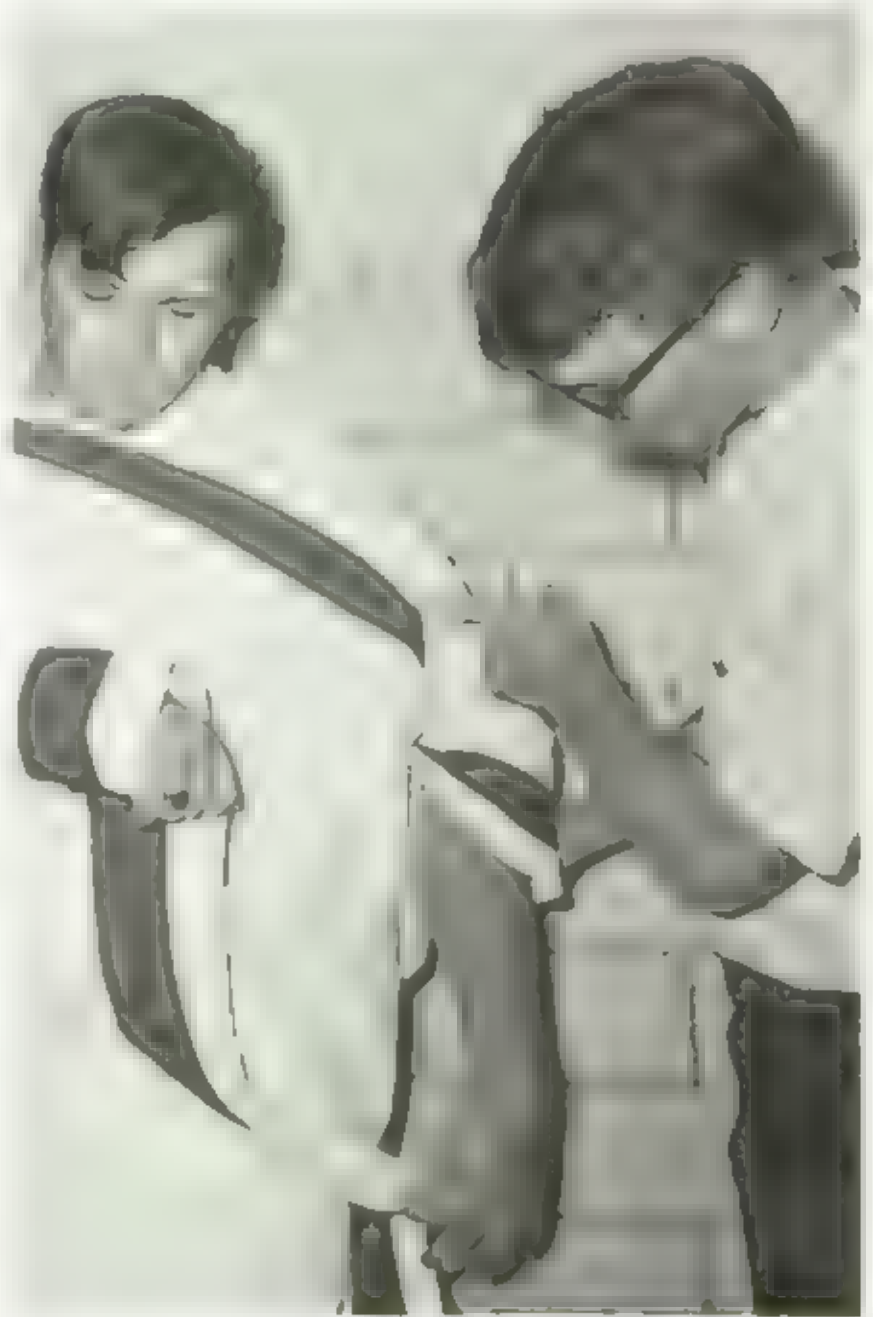

GERMAN CLUB officers Gwer Kuschnerelt, president; Mary Wittstock, secretary-treasurer; Eileen Wambrenner, social chairman; and Hap Wood, vice-president, helped with Octoberfest decorations.

Members of Latin Club plan for spring convention

Members of the Latin Club started off the school year with a great deal of enthusiasm as a club picnic was held in September. At this event, interested students learned requirements of the club and activities in which members could participate. They found that the only prerequisites were at least one year's study of Latin and an interest in Latin customs and culture. In their monthly meetings members discussed plans for attendance at the state and national conventions held in the spring. Secretary Don Snyder recounted the events of his trip to the national convention which was held last year at Michigan State University. Many participants worked toward the convention to be held in the summer in New Orleans by selling candy after school.

Members of the 1968-69 Spanish Club made the studying of the Spanish language and customs their goal. Students in this club were informed of the requirements and advantages of study in Spanish-speaking countries and sold candy to earn money toward this cause. Activities included initiation at the beginning of the year, decoration of halls for Christmas, and a Christmas dinner during which a colorful pinata was broken. Library aides promote reading, library interests

South's Biblionauts added many worthwhile projects to their schedules this year. Belonging to the Kansas Library Assistants Secondary Schools, a state wide organization, Colonel Biblionauts attended two out-of-town meetings. Their major project, the annual Book Fair was held in December and was termed a success as students were able to purchase a wide variety of current, popular paperback books. Other activities included a club picnic, a Christmas party, and decoration of the library for the Christmas season. In addition, Biblionauts held an open house for prospective library aides from several junior high schools. Y-Teens sponsored many projects this year to provide funds for various worthwhile institutions. A large portion of the profits went to the support of an eight year-old orphan from Hong Kong, a project new to the Y-Teens this year. In addition to organizing and presenting the annual Thanksgiving assembly and the Sadie Hawkins dance, the club also furnished a decorated Christmas tree to add to the theme of seasonal decorations of the halls. Other activities included distributing tray favors for the patients at a local hospital and caroling at Wichita's Boy's Ranch. South's Y-Teens also joined with similar groups throughout the city at the YMCA to teach younger children how to swim.

Office education students were easily recognizable this year by their colorful outfits. These plaid suits in South's school colors were worn during such activities as class luncheons and luncheons with other co-op classes or schools. Profits made from candy sales and a candle sale went toward sending members to various state meetings and conventions. A special officer's meeting was held this year in Emporia to plan the BECK convention. Business Education Clubs of Kansas and the Office Education Association conclaves were held in the spring. Profits from a Halloween and Christmas candy sales and a car wash went toward the BECK convention in the spring. The preparation and sale of caramel apples enabled members to attend the meeting of the Office Education Association. In addition, the club sponsored the Kansas State Weightlifting Championship in which the top lifters in the state competed. Cheerleaders lead spirit; present pep assemblies

This year's Colonel cheerleaders found few remaining moments of spare time after participating in school activities. Summer projects such as washing cars, ironing clothes, and washing windows earned money for them to attend the annual cheerleading camp in Dallas in which they were awarded one first-place and three second place prizes. Cheerleaders directed and inspired school spirit during school hours by presenting skits in pep assemblies, and cheering Colonel athletes on in all forms of sporting events. In addition they honored the efforts of others toward improving school spirit by awarding a "spirit stick" to an individual in each class every week. Colonel cheerleaders also aided the community by cheering at a United Fund rally.

Lettermen aid coaches to support, promote athletics

Composed of dedicated athletes, South High's Lettermen's Club aided the coaches in the support and promotion of the South High School athletic program. Membership in the club was limited to those athletes who had participated in varsity sports and had met specific requirements to earn a letter. New members to the club underwent initiation ceremonies that were held three times a year. The club sold monogrammed shirts and candy to raise money to send three boys to Fellowship of Christian Athletes Camp in Estes Park, Colorado. Furnishing food, clothes, and toys, the club aided a needy family during the Christmas holidays. The club met during sixth hour to deal with business, and held a monthly Lettermen's Recreation Night.

LETTERMEN OFFICERS for 1968-69 were Dennis Maze, sergeant at arms; Jim Berry, treasurer; Tom Turner, vice-president; Harold Holman, president; and Chris Hughes, secretary.

EXHIBITING CONVINCING sales pitches for Colonel sweatshirts were Lettermen Mike Strong and Richard McNabb.

THIS YEAR'S Colonelette officers were Kammie Carlton, secretary, treasurer, Beverly Roop, president, Gwen Johnson, intramural sports manager, Candy Cozad, vice-president, and Synda Schroder, publicity officer.

Colonelettes hold picnic; present athletic awards

Warm-up jackets to complete the newly-purchased uniform ensembles were the goal of this year's Colonelettes. Various money-making projects were carried out, the profits going toward the jackets. October was declared work month in which members did odd jobs to earn a total of $90.50. Money earned from a November "co-rec night" and a car wash also went toward this cause as did profits from ice cream and popcorn sales. Besides supporting and competing in girls' intramural sports, Colonelettes found time to go Christmas caroling in December, and hold skating and bowling parties in February. One major event was an "overnighter" in which they spent the night at the gym after a football game. The highlight of the year's activities was the annual May picnic and presentation of awards to girls in several fields of athletics.

PROVIDING HALF TIME entertainment for South's home football games was one of the many activities of the marching band.

Performances challenge band, orchestra students

Assuming a prominent role in South High activities, the band and orchestra performed well upon all occasions. The marching band, led by new drum major Bart Wilson, participated in the WSU Band Day activities, performed as the only Wichita band in the Veteran's Day Parade, and provided imaginative half-time shows at South's home football games. The group divided into a symphonic band and a concert band for the concert season, and the enlarged pep band supported South at its home basketball games. Forming an integral part of the spring musical was the orchestra. The orchestra, as well as the band, performed in school assemblies, in evening concerts, and at junior high schools within South's district.

Vocal Music entertains groups, goes to festival

After hard work and diligent practice, members of the various vocal music groups represented South well with music. Performances for the Wichita Chamber of Commerce, various church and civic groups, and a number of parties and luncheons kept South's vocalists busy with entertaining. The Thanksgiving and Easter assemblies were held by the vocal music department, and the groups presented a Christmas Vespers program. Because of changed group size specifications in the festival rules, Southern Belles and Musesettes were enlarged. The vocal music department rounded out an active year with competition in the city and state music festivals.

South scores first grid victory over East Aces

South climaxed an injury-laden season by handing East a 34-28 defeat, the first win over the Aces in Colonel history. Finishing the season with three wins and six losses, South joined Heights and Bishop Carroll in a fifth place finish in the City League. The Colonels broke into the win column with a 19-0 victory over Winfield in the season opener; but the win streak was broken short by North, who handed South a 21-6 defeat in the initial league game the following week. The Colonels bounced back from previous defeats to turn the tables on Heights with a 38-20 victory. For individual effort, Chris Hughes was named All City second team. Roger Jeter, defensive end, and Dennis Maze, linebacker, and Dave Kennedy, center, also made the All-City second team while quarterback Ron Friedman received honorable mention.

Houchin, harriers take third place in state meet

Although hampered by continual injuries, the Colone harriers put together the right combination of work and determination to garner South's first trophy in state competition. The team showed strength and consistency in scoring four thirds, four seconds, and, in the Salina Invitational, a first place finish in team competition. Junior and senior class two-mile records were set by Dave Houchin and Brad Pearce with times of 9:54 and 10:03, respectively. Junior Gene Ivey, repeatedly a high finisher, helped direct the varsity along with Rod DeGarmo, Larry McIntosh, Rod Bolay, Mark Rumpie, Hap Wood, Jim Parker, Sam Latta, Darryl Knauff, and Doug Mason. Pacing the "B" team to an undefeated season and showing South's fine depth were runners Gary Dickson, Tim McGrath, Lyle White, Gary Medrano, Dave Anderson, and Joel Cox.

Cagers finish sixth in city; Friedman breaks record

Though it finished fourth in city league offensive scoring and first in free-throw percentage, South took sixth in league basketball play with a 4-10 record. The Colonels lost a number of close decisions on their way to posting an 8-11 record for regular season play. An overtime loss of 59-54 to East coupled with narrow defeats of 63-61 and 48-46 by North and West cost the Colonels a higher city league finish. A 56-50 defeat by Augusta in the Bluestem Classic tournament knocked South into the consolation bracket where it ended up with the third place trophy. Senior Ron Friedman joined the top three career scorers in the school's history by accumulating over 500 points in two years and set a new school season scoring record by hitting over 300 points this year.

The Sophomore team met with less success in posting a 2-10 season record with a second place in the South Sophomore Invitational. Swimmers take fourth at state; Traner wins diving

An experienced group of Colonel swimmers completed this year's season with a total of eight wins and one loss to post the best dual meet season record in South's history. This record, which was second only to that of Southeast in City League competition, was complemented by a first place finish in the Campus Invitational, a third place finish in the Wichita Invitational, and a fourth place finish in the state meet. Senior Mike Traner climaxed his high school career by capturing the state diving championship at the state meet. Designated as most inspirational swimmer was senior Eric Hanson. Optimism was prevalent with regard to the success of South's spring sports. As defending state and city league champs, South's baseball team hoped for a repeat performance with high finishes in both areas of competition. Four returning lettermen were to lead the team in defense of its position. Five returning lettermen hoped to lead the track team in its quest for improvement over last year's finish. Returning four lettermen, South's tennis team hoped for a successful finish in city league competition. The golf team based its hopes for success upon the services of two returning lettermen. Athletes in these sports had maintained their physical conditioning during the winter months in special gym classes. Many sophomore and junior athletes hoped to obtain top positions in spring sports to back up and compliment the performances of the more experienced lettermen

TENNIS LETTERMEN Richard Roller, Craig Simons, Craig Lebst, and Jerry Lebst anticipated an improved season this year.

DAVID LEWANDOWSKY and Ken Enquist, both two year lettermen, looked forward to this year's links competition.

RETURNING FROM last year's state champion baseball team were Barry Thius, Ron Friedman, and Charles Pike. Not pictured is Chris Hughes.

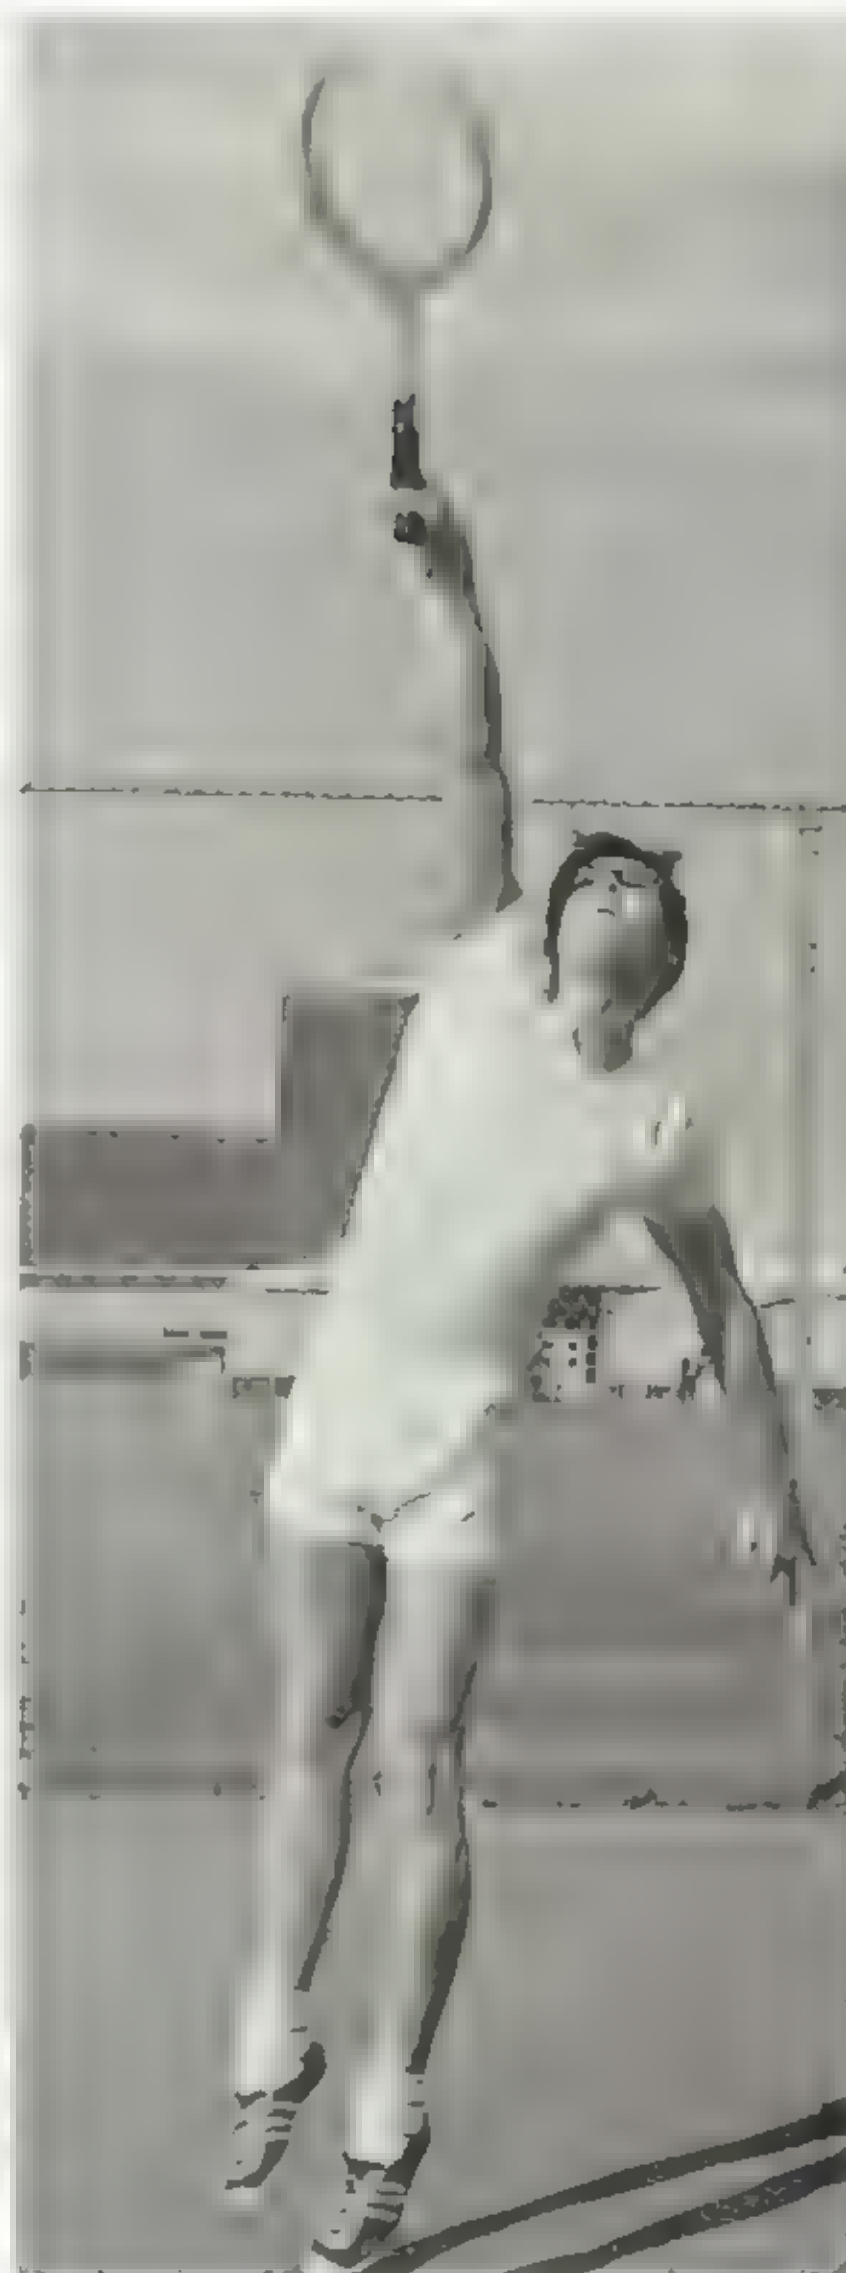

BASEBALL LETTERMAN Ron Friedman checked out gear from the equipment room in preparation for the upcoming season

TRACK LETTERMEN Roger Peck, Brad Pearce, Roger Jeter, Joel Cox, and Abe Serrano prepared themselves for the South Invitational, which was the season opener

JERRY LIEBST, returning tennis letterman, got in some valuable preseason practice

Seniors sell class keys; achieve scholastic honors

Senior Colonels this year increased their efforts to improve academic standings and vocational achievements as they looked ahead toward college, career, and service requirements. Outstanding members of South's class of 1969 were not forgotten; many scholarships for high scholastic and athletic records were awarded. A special kind of enthusiasm was added to many senior-sponsored events, including the Mardi Gras, the senior prom, and the senior banquet. Seniors showed their own form of appreciation by giving the teachers candy on one day of Teacher Appreciation Week. Twelfth graders were distinguished this year by senior class keys sold by class officers. The wearing of these keys symbolized a year in the life of each student that would never be forgotten.

Lead in magazine sales; plan Junior-Senior Prom

South's class of 1970 organized and carried out many projects and school events this year. Juniors sponsored not only the Junior-Senior Prom, but also two well received class dances. Juniors led as a class in the magazine sales, the annual money-making project supporting the prom. Ordering rings was a major event and stimulated class unity and pride. Eleventh grade students participated in the support of their Valentine booth at South's Mardi Gras and of Teacher Appreciation week by presenting apples to the hard working faculty. Winding up their junior year, selected students assisted in the 1969 graduation ceremonies as they looked forward to their own senior year.

In memoriam

Death is a cold and distant thing — until it strikes close to home. The loss of a friend, whether he is a close friend or a casual acquaintance, is an intensely personal and empty feeling. The death of Terry Honn produced such a feeling in many of South's students. Some knew Terry as a member of the cross country team, some as a South High Singer or member of Explorer Post #806, but all knew him as an intelligent and friendly boy. The tragic accident that claimed his life occurred on Thursday night, October 10, while Terry was on his way to a pep rally at school. The loss of a human life always seems senseless and unfair. Terry Honn will be remembered by friends and relatives as a person of faith, a happy person, and most of all a sincerely honest individual.

Inspire student interest; adjust to environment

The sophomore class used its status as the largest of South's classes to good advantage this year. The enthusiasm and participation exhibited inspired upper-classmen and suggested increasing spirit in the years to come. Class money-making projects such as "Rent-a-Soph Week," a bake sale, and a car wash successfully aroused interest and won support from fellow Colonels and faculty as well. Sophomore class officers sought to intersperse classroom routine with after school dances and activities. Students were allowed to display unusual talents in the sophomore talent show, which was held in January. Counselors, instructors, and administrators were instrumental in helping sophomores to adjust to the environment of Kansas' largest high school.

Powers and potentials of youth stimulated impatient curiosity

A flag became an important symbol of student understanding

Vibrant optimism was shared by destiny's citizens

South High students reflected
The gaiety of past events

Dances, clubs, and projects planned
Provided vital life experiences

Enjoyment was found in sharing
Hope, trust, and confidence

Each young mind anticipated promises of the future.

Changing standards, rules, ideas encouraged reflection of the past

Tokens of Colonel pride provided a lasting pledge to memory.

Hail to thee, our Alma Mater
Hail to thee, South High
We will sing and laud her praises
Ever to the sky.

Lift the chorus, speed it onward
Over hill and vale
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater
Hail to South, all hail!
